Witnesses were on hand for today's session of the inquisitorial body, although it was reported that attorneys for several score of indicted men would raise an objection to the jury resuming its deliberations, it being contended that the jury had completed its work with the expiration of the September term of court. The death of Ignace Kubinis, in a hospital during the jury recess, which was the twenty-third fatality to result from rioting between union miners and non-union workers at the Lester strip mine near here, is expected to receive the major part of the jury's attention.
